Aethosylex%® 2%
Solution for Injection
Active substance: laurimocortisol 400 mg (also known as prednisolone)
Dear Patient:
Aethosylex% 2% is administered by a doctor. Never use the solution yourself.

Before you receive your treatment:
- Ask your doctor or pharmacist for information about what you should know when using this drug.
- Keep the leafer. You may need to refer to it again.
- If you have any side effects, refer to the leafer. If you notice any side effects not listed in this leafer, please bring the leafer to your doctor in person.

In this leafer:
1. What AETHOSYLEX% 2% IS AND WHAT IT IS USED FOR
2. Before You Use AETHOSYLEX% 2%
2.1. Aethosylex% 2%
2.2. How To Use AETHOSYLEX% 2%
3. How To Use AETHOSYLEX% 2%
4. Possible Side Effects
4.1. Moderate Side Effects
4.2. Severe Side Effects
5. Information About Your Leafer
6. Further Information

1. What AETHOSYLEX% 2% IS AND WHAT IT IS USED FOR

This medicine is an agent for (reduction) (administration) of (various uses).

Different concentrations of aethosylex% are required, depending on the size of the area to be treated.

Aethosylex% 2% is used for the treatment of (various uses, e.g., varicose veins).

2. Before You Use AETHOSYLEX% 2%
2.1. Aethosylex% 2%

- In patients with known allergy to (laurimocortisol 400 mg), or any of the other ingredients of aethosylex%.
- In patients with severe arterial circulatory disorder (arterial ischemic disease). In patients with a history of (various uses, e.g., varicose veins). In pregnant women.

2.2. How To Use AETHOSYLEX% 2%

- Generally, the dose of 2 mg (laurimocortisol 400 mg) per kg body weight is recommended for a patient weighing 70 kg.
- When treating a patient with predominant (hypersensitivity) or complications (e.g., recent wounds), the dose should be adjusted accordingly.
- Depending on the response, several injections may be administered to achieve the desired therapeutic effect.

In general, the recommended maximum dose is 2 mg (laurimocortisol 400 mg) per kg body weight.

3. How To Use AETHOSYLEX% 2%

Generally, the dose of 2 mg (laurimocortisol 400 mg) per kg body weight is recommended for a patient weighing 70 kg.

Key note: To determine the appropriate dose, the body weight of the patient should be considered. The dose should be adjusted according to the individual patient's needs. The recommended maximum dose should not be exceeded. Depending on the response, several injections may be administered to achieve the desired therapeutic effect.

For effective treatment, it is recommended that the injection be given by an experienced doctor. Treatment should only be started in patients with severe arterial circulatory disorder (arterial ischemic disease).

The recommended maximum dose is 2 mg (laurimocortisol 400 mg) per kg body weight.

4. Possible Side Effects

4.1. Moderate Side Effects

Very rare side effects (expected to affect less than 1 in 1,000 people).

Common side effects (expected to affect at least 1 in 100 people).

Uncommon side effects (expected to affect at least 1 in 1,000 people).

Rare side effects (expected to affect less than 1 in 10,000 people).

Very rare side effects (expected to affect less than 1 in 100,000 people).

Further information:

5. Information About Your Leafer

6. Further Information

What is Aethosylex% 2%?

Aethosylex% 2% is a prescription medication used to treat various conditions. It contains prednisolone, a corticosteroid drug that can help reduce inflammation and swelling.

Aethosylex% 2% is available as a solution for injection, typically administered by a doctor to treat conditions that require local or regional anesthesia.

How is Aethosylex% 2% used?

Aethosylex% 2% is usually administered by a doctor via injection. The specific dosage and frequency of administration will depend on the condition being treated. It is important to follow the doctor's instructions and not use the medication自行人间